No Marks Found

Coroner Stutz said there were no marks on Mrs. Timmer's body to [illegible] her story that Brown attacked her early Friday morning near Marietta. He also said there was lack of proof for her statement that her dog had torn Brown's coat when it leaped to her defense as Brown attacked her. The coat showed no marks, the coroner said.

Circumstances surrounding the death of Brown led officials to advance robbery as the possible motive for the shooting. They learned from R. D. Brown, brother of the dead man, that Mrs. Timmer was a member of a carnival troupe that made an unsuccessful attempt to purchase Brown's collection of Indian relics at Powhatan Point last [illegible]. The brother said, Mrs. Timmer later talked to Brown and persuaded him to get a small bus and begin a tour of county fairs and schools, displaying the relics. The brother of the victim said the collection was valued at $12,000. They also said that some of Brown's insurance papers were missing from a small box in which he had kept them in the truck.

The coroner said Brown had been shot about five hours before his body was examined at 11 p. m. Friday. Mrs. Timmer's bus was seen at 7 p. m. Friday, parked along the Upper Sandusky-Carey road by Charles Hehr, the coroner learned.

It is apparent that the shooting must have occurred either in Marion or Wyandot county, the coroner said.

The coroner stated that Brown's death had been caused by a gunshot wound in the head, and that death had been instantaneous. He removed the bullet yesterday during an autopsy at the Bringman & [illegible] funeral home.

Hit with Iron

Sheriff Harry Weatherholtz advanced the opinion that Mrs. Timmer struck Brown with a flat iron Friday morning while they were near Marietta, and probably believed she had killed him. The iron, with particles of hair on it, was found in the bus, and bruises on

MANHUNT ON FOR FUGITIVES

Ohio and Indiana Join in Search for Lima Sheriff Slayers.

POSSES COMB RIVER AREA

Camps in Cincinnati District Watched Closely by Heavily Armed Police.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 16—A hundred officers from Ohio and Indiana moved through Big Miami river camps near Venice, 20 miles north of here last night and today, in search of John Dillinger, accused bank robber, and three men who released him from jail at Lima, O., last Thursday, after killing Sheriff Jess Sarber, 50.

The officers said they believed the band that freed Dillinger lay in waiting near Venice before making the Lima raid. Finding in Hamilton, O., of a car believed to have been used in that foray, they said, made it seem likely the band had returned to the riverside base they had established.

Lima officers, led by Chief J. W. Cook and Detective Chief B. J. Roney, prowled the camping area throughout last night. Today reinforcements came from the Indiana state police, Cincinnati police, and Hamilton and Butler county officers. A hundred men and 20 police cars made up the searching crew.

Weapons ready, they moved slowly through the woods and brush skirting the river, surrounding wood shacks quietly before advancing to determine if they were occupied and by whom.

Dillinger is wanted on six bank robbery charges in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, and Pennsylvania. Those who freed him are believed to have been among those who escapd from the Michigan City, Ind., state prison almost three weeks ago.

Investigation that followed finding of the machine in Hamilton Sunday night, the officers said, brought information from a farmer living near Venice that five men, some of them answering descriptions of the escaped convicts, rented a camp Oct. 2, and left Oct. 10, two days before Dillinger was freed.

TIE-UP OF WHEAT SHIPMENTS LOOMS

By The Associated Press

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 16 — A tie-up of spring wheat shipments from North Dakota appeared imminent today as Gov. William Langer considered the plan in an effort to raise the price of the grain which is the state's principal crop.

Gov. Langer has drawn up a proclamation to declare an embargo on such shipments and was making a study of its legal phases before putting it into effect.

Farmers now are getting less than the production costs of the wheat, he said.

County Corn Huskers To Vie Tuesday

Champs Will Defend Laurels in Contests Near Waldo.

Preparations for two contests Tuesday afternoon on farms near Waldo to decide for another year the champion corn huskers of Marion county were being completed today by sponsors of the events.

Entries for the contests, one in standing corn and one in shock corn, have neared the limit mark, the sponsors said. A total of 14 huskers, including the champions and runners-up of the last two years, have entered so far.

The contests, the third annual events, are being sponsored by Marion and Waldo merchants, with the aid of members of the Waldo Young Men's Farming club. Five prizes in each contest will go along with the championship titles.

Champions Entered

The battle in the standing corn contest promises the most excitement, according to present indications, the sponsors said. In this division, the contestants include Earl Speice of near Kirkpatrick, winner of last year's contest, William Lemke of near Kirkpatrick, winner two years ago, and Linerd Roesch of near Martel, winner of the Tully township contest last Friday.

Others in this division are Jasper Hill of Martel, second place winner in the Tully township contest, Charles Peak of near Waldo, Lindley Osborn of Marion, Milton Denzer of near Waldo, Charley Rogers of near Waldo, Paul Lemke of near Kirkpatrick and Ralph Roesch of near Kirkpatrick.

Battling for supremacy in the shock corn contest will be Ralph F. Augenstein, last year's champion, along with Danny Miller of Waldo, who was nosed out for first place last year by Augenstein by a half-pound margin, Lindley Osborn, Milton Denzer, Charley Rogers, Paul Trefz of near Waldo, and Linerd Roesch.

May Shift Lineups

Levi H. Lukens, vocational agricultural instructor at the Waldo school, who is aiding with the contest, said some shifts may be made in the lineups if other entries are received, since a number of the contestants are entered in both divisions.

Roland K. Leeper of the Marion County Farm bureau will judge the standing corn contest and members of the Farming club will officiate at the other.

The shock contest will start at noon on the Kenyon farm northeast of Waldo with the standing corn contest beginning at 2 p. m. on the Calvin Retterer farm one mile east of the stone-quarry on the Stone road.

VOTERS REGISTER AT RATE OF 100 A DAY

Tuesday Is Deadline for Becoming Eligible To Cast Nov. 7 Ballots.

Registrations pouring into the board of elections headquarters in the Marion Building, Savings & Loan Co. building at the rate of 100 a day led C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the board, to predict today that the Nov. 7 election will bring out a record municipal vote.

The opportunity for Marion residents to qualify themselves to vote in the election, provided they are not already properly registered, will end Tuesday at 11:30 p. m., Mr. Ritzler said.

By that time, all persons who failed to vote at the last two general elections, persons who have come of voting age since the last election and those whose names have been changed by marriage or divorce must register if they expect to vote Nov. 7. It also is the deadline for transfers of registrations for persons who have moved from one precinct to another since voting last.

There was a small line waiting for registration and transfers this morning as workers in both political parties redoubled their efforts to induce prospective voters to register.

Driver Escapes Death in Bucyrus Crossing Crash

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 16—Harry Arnold, 25, of here, was seriously injured, his coal truck demolished and a crossing watchman's shanty razed by fire when Mr. Arnold's truck was struck by an eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train today at 3:30 a. m. at the Lane street crossing.

Mr. Arnold was pinned in the cab of the truck which was carried 100 feet down the track. Part of the truck was hurled against the frame shanty, knocking over a coal stove in which the watchman had left coals when he went off duty. The shanty was burned to the ground.

Mr. Arnold suffered a fractured left leg, a fractured left arm and facial lacerations. His condition is reported to be serious, but not critical, at the Bucyrus City hospital.

The accident was the second in which Mr. Arnold has figured in the last two weeks. His truck and a car collided at an intersection here about two weeks ago. Neither machine was damaged badly and no one was hurt.

Mr. Arnold was starting for coal mines in southern Ohio when he was struck this morning.

F. D. R. CALLS FOR SUPPORT OF CHARITIES

Appeals To Citizens for Aid in Prevention of Human Suffering.

PLEDGES GOVERNMENT AID

Other Revenue Sources Must, However, Be Exhausted First, President Asserts.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Every citizen today was called upon by President Roosevelt to support private charities relieving human distress.

His appeal from the White House last night opened the four weeks mobilization for human needs under the direction of Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war. Mr. Roosevelt said the government's promise to let no one starve was "predicated on the assumption" that every individual would "continue to do his or her part."

The President described those who would put all relief on the government and "deny the civic responsibility of the individual" as "buck passers." He added:

"The overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly that it is first the duty of the individual and the local community to do all they can to maintain relief and welfare; that it is then the obligation of the state government to supplement local efforts and that finally, if all this put together is not sufficient, the federal government stands ready to help.

"I ask every citizen to give his or her support to the community chests and to other organizations that raise funds for the regular welfare services—bodies which express the instincts of charity, or humanity and neighborliness. They are an essential to the whole American scheme of life."

Baker Expresses Views on Relief

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16 — Newton D. Baker sees the "whole attitude of our people toward the deeper and more fundamental implications of democracy" as "the thing that is at stake in this depression."

"The question is, what kind of a people will we be socially and spiritually when the depression has passed," he said in an address last night which opened the four-week drive of the 1933 Mobilization For Human Needs, of which he is chairman.

"Under the recovery act," he asserted, "large numbers of people are finding employment with the material relief which governmental agencies are supplying.

"But the care of the handicapped is still the burden of private effort, and our morale as a people depends on our being able to feel that the sick and afflicted are being provided for, and that the young life of the nation is being stimulated into aself-reliant and self-respecting manhood and womanhood.

"The great contributions which the federal and state governments provide take care of the material needs which grow out of unemployment, but they leave, and leave rightly, to each community the privilege and duty of maintaining these other agencies."

Alger Constable Fires as Prisoner Makes Break To Escape.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., Oct. 16—Andy Puckett, 19, was wounded, probably fatally, by Constable John Daniels of Alger early Sunday morning when he struck the officer and attempted to escape following his arrest. Puckett is in McKitrick hospital with a bullet wound through the liver and lung. The bullet is lodged in his right chest.

Constable Daniels said he had made the arrest when Puckett attempted to assault Howard Clark and four companions following an automobile accident. Puckett, he said, had been drinking.

Puckett, the constable said, struck him as he was attempting to unlock the village prison. As Puckett ran, the constable fired four shots. Puckett escaped and went two miles to the home of George Risner, who called Puckett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Press Puckett of near Alger. They took Puckett to the hospital.

ASK STATE PEN RECORDS

Man Sent To Prison from Ashland Believed To Be Suspect.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16 — Authorities of San Diego, Calif., today requested Warden Preston E. Thomas of Ohio penitentiary to rush to them the Bertillion records of a former inmate, for use in connection with the investigation of the brutal murder there of Mrs. Laura Ella Straw, 60, a widow.

San Diego police said they were searching for Thomas M. Jones after the dismembered body of Mrs. Straw, tied in sacks, was recovered from San Diego bay.

Warden Thomas said the records requested of him were those of a man who entered Ohio penitentiary in 1927 under the name of Tully McQuate, 44, of Ashland county, O. After serving two terms for liquor law violations, he was paroled in 1929. At that time, the warden said, the man claimed to have a wife and four children at Ashland.

A check with Ashland peace officers disclosed that Mrs. Esther McQuate obtained a divorce from her husband while he was serving sentence for his third offense against the prohibition laws. Her decree was granted Jan. 14, 1928. She and their four children are still living in Ashland.

(Will Rogers Special)

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 16—So Germany left the League! Well, we can't criticize, we never went in.

The poor old League never had a chance, for it had no power. It tried to keep everybody good by having 'em sign a pledge (but there was nothing they could do to you if you broke the pledge). They didn't need guns to make the League a real success.

An economic boycott against any nation by all the others would have done the trick. Let the world quit trading with Japan and China will have Manchuria back by breakfast time.

Nations will give up their lives (even cheer about it)—they will give up their money in order to give up their lives, but to ask one to give up their trade to prevent a war! Well, that has never been done.

Auto Injuries Result in Death of "Strong Man"

Death claimed Marion's "strong man" Saturday night at 8:45 at the City hospital. George Oscar Diegle, for many years renowned throughout Ohio and the middlewest as a man of unusual strength, died at the age of 72 of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile Monday night on North Main street.

Displaying his unusual strength in chain-breaking, weight lifting and other feats was a pastime for Mr. Diegle. He was a decorator by trade. At one time he served as president of a union of Marion paperhangers. Ten years ago a general breakdown of his health forced him to retire to a life of almost complete inactivity.

Traveled With Show

For a time as a young man Mr. Diegle traveled as "strong man" with a medicine show owned by the late Dr. J. A. McMurray of Marion. The show traveled throughout the middlewest.

Short daily walks were Mr. Diegle's only pleasure after his health failed. Last Monday night he left the home of his brother-in-law and Withdrawal from League Fails To Excite Panic Among Nations.

BORAH SEES WAR THREAT

Other Statesmen, However, See Few Signs of Conflict Imminent.

By The Associated Press.

"There is no time for panic—"

Such, in brief, was the world-wide reaction today to Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference and the international development which followed.

A grave view of the resultant situation was shared by all.

"We are facing the possibility of another war," cried Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Republican, at Boise.

But, added the former chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, no single nation is to blame! "It is the fruit of the policies of many nations."

At Washington, however Secretary of State Cordell Hull placed the blame for impeding world progress toward disarmament squarely up to the reich.

Other Reactions

In other quarters the reaction was:

LONDON — Newspapers urged Great Britain to remain cool, insisting that peace was not necessarily threatened. Urging denunciation of the Locarno peace pact, Lord Beaverbrook reminded that it bound France under certain conditions to demand British support in military movements against Germany.

PARIS—"The situation is grave," said a foreign office spokesman, "but France is keeping cool." Official silence was expected to be maintained until Tuesday, while England and the United States reaction is noted. Significantly, Minister of Pensions Edmond Miellet said at Belfort, that despite the need for economy, "the budget for

CHAIRMAN IN DRAMATIC PLEA FOR SUCCESS

Henderson Tells Delegates Struggle for Disarmanment Must Go On.

ANSWERS GERMAN MOVE

Raps False Attitude of Nations That Disregard Established System.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Oct. 16 Solemnly invoking the duty imposed on humanity by great war's 10,000,000 dead and 20,000,000 wounded, President Arthur Henderson of the disarmament conference, in a speech which brought almost frenzied applause from a great crowd, today demanded unceasing efforts to prevent the world being plunged into barbarism by another like conflict.

Receiving the international peace associations, a majority Americans, Henderson of Great Britain, said, "my message is that the struggle for disarmament must go on and that the covenant of the League of Nations shall not be treated as a scrap of paper. We will not break faith with the dead who fell that there should be no more war."

With eloquent gestures, and in impassioned tone, Henderson continued

"Nail your flag to the mast of the league.

Make the will to peace stronger than the will to war.

Must Meet Defeat

"Every delay or defeat must call forth fresh reserves of stubborn and relentless energy. The flower of one generation was slain in the great war and it is our duty to give the world peace in our time."

Making what was deemed an allusion to Germany, he continued: "We must not hesitate to incur risks and make whatever sacrifice may be necessary to ensure the final triumph of the reign of law over international anarchy that breeds war."

Henderson said the withdrawal of Germany necessitated asking what all were trying to do at Geneva and his answer was that all were endeavoring to organize a peace. "That enterprise is not confined to members of the league," he said.

"We have welcomed as partners the United States and the Soviet Union and they have both made great contributions to the cause of consolidating world peace—the United States through its nine-power treaty and agreements concluded at Washington through the Paris pact the London naval agreement and numerous conciliation arbitration treaties."

After paying a tribute to Russia's peace impulses, Henderson, making what was believed to be another allusion to Germany, said, "However just its cause or good its intention no government can be trusted to remain loyal to the cause of peace if it flouts the collective peace system to which the world is pledged.

Raps False Attitude

"The government which rejects that system is inevitably encouraging its citizens to regard war as legitimate and inevitable."

Mr. Henderson presented an outline of the developments in the situation leading up to Germany's withdrawal and then read a reply to Konstantin Von Neurath, the German foreign minister, who on Saturday advised the chairman of his nation's intention to withdraw both from the League of Nations and the parley. The reply had been approved by the steering committee, and was read amidst applause from many of the benches.

The chairman declared he did not wish "to let pass unchallenged" Herr Von Neurath's declaration that the highly armed nations had no intention to disarm and that Watchful Waiting Planned by U. S.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The United States, while expressing formally a determination that disarmament efforts must not be allowed to fail, has decided upon a temporary attitude of watchful waiting toward efforts to this end at Geneva.

It was made clear today at the state department that unless unforeseen developments arise, this country will await the results of conferences during next three or four days between European leaders before taking further action.

On behalf of President Roosevelt, it was said that the nations should "redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path" toward disarmament, a situation made more acute by Germany's withdrawal from the arms parley and the League of Nations.

A communication containing these words was addressed to Lord Robert Cecil of England in connection with a peace mass meeting in Geneva yesterday. It was transmitted by Secretary Hull through Norman H. Davis, America's ambassador at large.

LIQUOR CONTROL — As Others Do It

No. 3—Norway's Local Option . . . Sweden's Liquor "Passbook's"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Since the number of states ratifying the twenty-first amendment to repeal national prohibition neared the total of 36 required, increasing attention has been given liquor control plans in other lands. This article, third of a series of four, deals with Norway and Sweden.

* * *

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 16 — While some Baltic countries have resorted to high taxation and definite state monopoly as a means of liquor control, with free sale permitted, Sweden, through the Bratt system, continues to regard sale and consumption of liquor primarily as a social problem.

In basic principle the Bratt system insists upon:

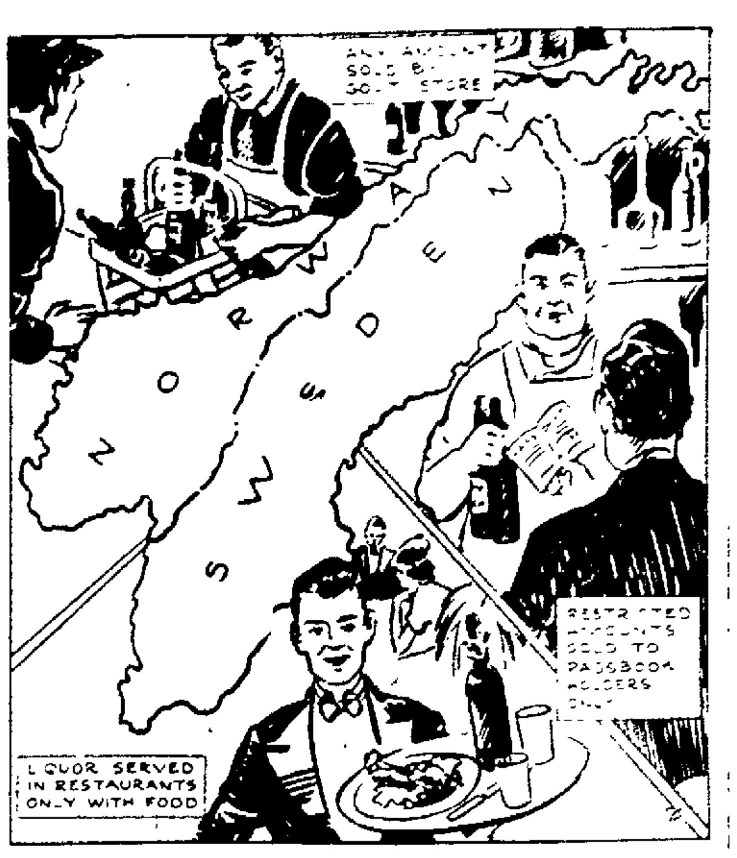
(1) Disinterested management and control of private profit.

(2) Revenue to the state.

(3) Distinction between liquor sold for home consumption and in restaurants.

(4) Emphasis on the individual consumer.

In its [illegible] operation the system as [illegible] developed provides for tax sale of liquor at special stores and only to persons possessing the passbook identification, the compulsory information for the state regarding holders of passbooks including drinking habits, occupation, size of family if married, income, general qualifications as a citizen and so on, for sale of strong liquor at restaurants in restricted quantities and only when food is served at the same time, and for regulation of amount of liquor sold to individual according to age, sex and so on.



ANY AMOUNT SOLD BY GOVT STORE
NORWAY
SWEDEN
RESTRICTED AMOUNTS SOLD TO PASSBOOK HOLDERS ONLY
LIQUOR SERVED IN RESTAURANTS ONLY WITH FOOD

Norway, after 10 years' experience with prohibition, now allows any amount of liquor to be sold over the counter of government-monopoly stores, except in dry areas. Sweden imposes restrictions as to amount and place of sale.

Bratt System Effective in 1919

Foundations of modern Swedish alcohol legislation go back to 1855 when special taxation put a stop to private manufacture of brannvin (potato spirit) and modern liquor companies were established. In 1909 the prohibitionist movement reached the height of its power. In a voluntary plebiscite more than 1,600,000 men and women over 18 years pronounced for prohibition and only about 20,000 against. In 1919 the Bratt system was placed in effect.

Country Is Districted

It divides Sweden into districts, each with a retailing company, which is also the center of registration. Each company keeps an alphabetically arranged central register containing data regarding all persons with whom the company has dealings, a sales register containing names of approved customers and a register of all purchases made, according to date.

If single, the individual can be entitled to as much as three liters (about three quarts) of [illegible] liquor a month. M[illegible] family, he can be entitled to as high as four liters a month. [illegible] men, getting their first [illegible] are usually granted [illegible] month. Young workers, [illegible] a rule, get only one [illegible] three months.

Restaurants, which [illegible] permitted only a definite [illegible] sales profit, serve [illegible] heavy wine only with food.

State Shares Profits

Retailing companies [illegible] private capital, but all revenue [illegible] per cent of the actual [illegible] subscribed by the shareholders is payable to the state.

Wholesale companies, of which there are two in Sweden, are otherwise restricted to a certain profit and are subject to control by the state.

"It can be claimed," declares Director John Bergvall, director of the Bratt system in Stockholm, "that the alcoholic legislation now in force in Sweden has been responsible for the decrease in chronic alcoholism and drunkenness in general."

Norway Gave It 10-Year Trial

By The Associated Press

OSLO — Norway gave up prohibition after a decade's trial.

The system now in force includes local option—whereby each city, town and village determines whether it shall be wet or dry, and a government monopoly in the trade with wine and spirits.

The government monopoly maintains sales organizations in the largest cities. Customers are allowed to buy over the counter any amount of wine or liquor, but none is served for consumption on the premises. Certain restaurants and hotels are granted the right to serve alcoholic beverages.

Dry Areas Import Liquor

Many places are still dry, so that neither beer, wine nor spirits may be sold or served, but importation of these beverages for personal use is allowed.

Since it is difficult in many rural districts to obtain legal liquor, "moonshining" is practiced to a certain extent. Liquor prices are high, in many cases being prohibitive for the common people, which has been one of the contributory causes to the illegal distilling.

Prohibition for 10 Years

Norway's prohibition period dates from December, 1916, and in the succeeding years the nation experienced a wave of smuggling, illegal trading in liquor, establishment of private stills, crime and deaths caused by the consumption of poisonous substitutes.

After a plebiscite in 1926, in which a big majority voted against prohibition, the law was repealed. Since then the number of arrests for intoxication has steadily decreased, though it has not reached the low pre-war figure, and smuggling was practically stopped immediately.

FORECLOSURES SHOW DECREASE IN OHIO

Associated Press Report Indicates Decline in Number of Forced Sales.

A downward trend in real estate foreclosures in Ohio was noted in August, an Associated Press survey of the state showed today. During the month 12 forced sales were held in Marion county.

The 12 sales here totaled $27,344 in judgment amounts, $71,25[illegible] in appraised value and $54,1[illegible] in sale value, the news dispatch said. By law the property must be sold for not less than two-thirds of the appraised value. Other counties in this district included in the report are Allen, Knox and Richland.

In six large counties of Ohio, the dispatch said, the number of property auctions fell from 448 in July to 371 in August, while decreases were reported from many other sections of the state. The total sales reported for the state in August was 820, against a July total of [illegible].

The sale figures from the nearby counties follow: Allen, [illegible] sales, judgment amount $[illegible], appraised value $14,47[illegible], sale value $9,600; Knox, three sales, judgment amount $9,[illegible], appraised value $12,360, sale value $[illegible]; and Richland, five sales, judgment amount $12,[illegible]15, appraised value $13,200, sale value $[illegible].

Homemaker's Question Box

Question: What is the best method of preparing less tender cuts of meat?

Answer: The less tender cuts come from the parts of the animal which are greatly exercised and they contain large amounts of connective tissue. There are two kinds of connective tissue, the white or collagen which changes into gelatin when heated with moisture and the yellow or elastin which remains practically unchanged when cooked.

Braising, stewing and cooking in water which are all slow methods, are the three general ways of cooking with moist heat, recommended for the less tender cuts, by the extension specialists in nutrition for the Ohio State University Extension Service. In the cooking of meat in moist heat the temperature should be kept below the boiling point of water or the meat will be dry and fibrous. All recent experiments have shown that the lower temperature will give a finished product with better flavor, less cooking loss, and better appearance.

OPPOSES PENSION.

BUCYRUS, Oct. 16—Frank B. McMillin, president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, addressed a public meeting at First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday night opposing the old age pension law which will be placed before voters in November. The address is the first of a series scheduled by Rev. John D. Green of First M. E. church.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasant results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

THERE was an old woman with a string bag full of vegetables and an enormous sheaf of cottage flowers—crimson phlox, red and white single dahlias, full-blown cabbage roses, and clove carnations which scented the whole compartment.

She had a crushed black straw on the back of her head, a dark cashmere dress, and a thick black cloth coat. Her face was hot and red under scanty wisps of grey hair. She was very hot because she lived two miles out of Ledlington and had hurried to catch the train.

Copyright, 1933, J. B. Lippincott Co.

She fanned herself with a cabbage leaf, and as soon as she had got her breath she began to talk, first about the weather and then about the Van Berg case. Three girls on the opposite seat, flimsily dressed slips of things with salmon-colored stockings, berets and magenta lips went on whispering and giggling together while she told them how the snails were over-running her garden from one end to the other, and how she had set a slug trap—"And if I was to tell you what I caught, you wouldn't believe me."

A shy young man who was fidgeting with an unlighted cigaret looked out of the window. The Miss Borings, who kept a genteel woolshop in Mickleham street, sat primly side by side in their neat, dowdy blue serge coats and skirts. They were identical tucked muslin blouses with high collars and rolled gold collar-supports, and twin hats of dark blue straw with plain black ribbons.

The schoolboy next to them was immersed in the latest mystery thriller. The old gentleman with the beard went on filling his pipe. And the young married couple opposite Caroline continued to hold one another's hands.

Snails have no charm to unite a carriage full of strangers in a common bond of interest. But no sooner had the stout woman pronounced the name Van Berg than every one had something to say.

"It's a queer thing they don't seem to catch the man that shot Mr. Van Berg," she said, and the schoolboy emerged from his thriller with a jerk.

"They say they've got a clue," he began.

"That doesn't mean very much," said the old man. He tapped his pipe. "The sort of thing they say to keep the public quiet — like throwing a bone to a dog."

The girl with the large blue eyes rolled them at the shy young man and giggled.

The stout woman fanned herself. "I was up at the hall yesterday—"

"Packham hall?" said both Miss Borings together.

* * *

THE stout woman nodded.

"Cook's my brother's second wife's cousin-in-law, and I took her over a couple of pots of honey. The shop stuff's that watered down she don't relish it, so I took her some of mine—never been before where they didn't keep their own bees, and don't like it.

"And then to have a murder, or next door to it, well, she don't think she'll stay—such an upset, and not what she's used to. Why, when she heard the shot, she come over that queer she couldn't have got out of bed, not if it had been the house on fire.

"'Mrs. Rogers,' she says—that being my name—'Mrs. Rogers, I give you my solemn identical word, I just pulled the clothes over my head and waited to see if I was going to be murdered in my bed.' She don't look her right color yet."

"I don't know how I should feel if I was to hear someone being shot in the middle of the night," said the young married woman.

"I know what you'd do," said her husband—"pinch me, same as you're doing now."

The girl giggled, and the Miss Borings coughed.

"Ah!" said Mrs. Rodgers. "It isn't [illegible] that's got someone to [illegible]. I'm a widow meself, and so's Mrs. Henry that I've been telling about. Her 'usband was a policeman, so it doesn't put her about having the police in and out and all over the place, as you might say—and maybe she'd got told a thing or two as she wouldn't have got told if it weren't for her 'usband's official position."

Everyone leaned forward a little. The shy young man burst into speech.

"Did she tell you whom they suspected?"

Mrs. Rodgers shook her head.

"Were there any finger prints?" said the schoolboy. "They'll get him if there were."

"Ah!" said Mrs. Rodgers darkly. "Well, I don't know as I ought to say, but seeing as we're all friends here—" She paused, fanning herself.

Caroline caught the inside of her lip between her teeth. Her hands held each other hard. A general murmur encouraged Mrs. Rogers to proceed.

"Well, it's something as hasn't got into the papers—I can tell you that—and everyone in the house told not to say a word. They'd have kep' them from knowing if so be they could, but when there's a tray and glasses took for finger prints, there's going to be talk in the servants' hall whether or no."

"Ah—" said the old man with the beard.

Caroline's grip relaxed a trifle. She knew this already; it was what Jim had told her. But then it meant—it meant he had remembered right!

Given in Marriage

BY ADELE GARRISON

The doctor's examination reveals that two of the would-be assassin's bullets struck Dicky.

WITH A poignant pang of sympathy, I recognized a note of something closely resembling terror in Dicky's voice, as he put his query to the physician. But there was more than recognition in that sympathetic thrill. There was comprehension of his reason for the question, and I involuntarily leaned forward in breathless anxiety to hear the answer.

Did the physician hesitate? I was not sure, so short an interval elapsed between Dicky's question and his answer.

"I do not think so," he said. "But it came very near it—so near that it may have grazed it."

The color ebbed from Dicky's face again.

"You'd better be sure," he said. "That's my drawing arm, you know."

The physician started perceptibly.

"By jove, that's so," he said. "I had forgotten about your being Graham, the artist."

In his voice there was the peculiar intonation, composed of one part deferential respect and two parts ironic, amused wonder, with which people outside the professions usually speak of those who earn their bread and jam as authors or artists.

To the Hospital

"Yes, I happen to be that unfortunate person," Dicky said irritably. "But that isn't the question. What I want to know is what you mean by 'just grazing?' Will the ligament be hurt in the least?"

Again I heard that sharpened note of terror, and I wondered if he felt, as I did, that the physician was suspiciously hesitant in answering.

"I do not think you need have any fear on that score," the doctor said, after a second. "But just to satisfy yourself, why don't you let me take you over to the hospital for a day or two? I can make only a cursory examination here. There, you can know very quickly just what damage has been done, if any. I am confident you will find these are only flesh wounds."

"These?" Hugh Grantland echoed. "Was there more than one wound?"

"Yes, two," the physician replied laconically.

"And a low average it was, too," dicky commented. "The beggar fired six times at me."

Hugh Volunteers

I shivered, and my eyes went with instinctive, involuntary appeal to those of Hugh Grantland. If my fantastic theory concerning Lee Chow were true, could Hugh guarantee the shackling of the murderous hand which had fired those shots?

Hugh evidently had been watching me, for my searching eyes found his instantly, and into them came an intent look which spelled a distinct message to me. Then he gave a little nod, almost imperceptible, but which brought infinite comfort and reassurance to me.

"If you wish to go to the hospital," he turned to Dicky, "I wish you would go in my car. There is room enough in it for both the chief and me beside you."

"Why, thank you, old chap," Dicky said, and I was afraid I detected in his voice a note of constraint, indicating the reluctance with which he usually receives any proffer of aid from Hugh. "But that seems unnecessary, if the doctor has his car here, ready to give me a lift."

"Do you think we are going to let you go alone, my boy?" my father demanded affectionately, and Dicky gave him the smile with which he always greets "the chief."

"What About Madge?"

"I surely don't want to drag you away from home at this hour, sir," he said.

"Just let me be the judge of that," my father returned. And then he turned to the young physician, with the authoritative air he knows so well how to assume.

"Is your car a large one?" he asked.

"No, only a runabout."

"Then I am sure you will agree with me," my father went on suavely, "that it would be far better for my son-in-law to go with Major Grantland and myself in the major's big car, than in a runabout with you, where there would be little room for him. Of course, we will take Mrs. Bickett with us, if she will go"—he made a courtly bow in Katherine's direction—"and she will remain at the hospital until Mr. Graham returns home."

Katherine spoke one word to me in an undertone.

"Faith?" she said.

"All right," I returned emphatically, in equally low tones, and Katherine turned her eyes to my father's face.

"I shall be glad to go," she said simply. "I'll get my patient ready for moving right away."

But my husband put out a protesting hand.

"What about Madge?" he demanded.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, Oct. 17

THE ASTRAL influences for this day point to a rather precipitate change, journey or removal, proving advantageous as well as of an adventurous nature. Strange developments are presaged, or contracts with the unusual in persons and experiences. New friendships may prove quite interesting and profitable. Sign papers cautiously. There is a sign of some disappointment or obstacle with property or labor.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised at a sudden change, journey or removal, bringing desirable new contacts, interests and associates. New adventures and friends may prove profitable and pleasant. Sign all writings with precaution, and be prepared for a set-back, postponement or disappointment in connection with proberty or labor.

A child born on this day may be original, independent in thought and action, diligent, clever and optimistic, but it may be subject to scandal or misunderstanding.

SUBMERGED HUSBANDS.

My heart goes out to that young playwright who, according to a recent report, refuses to let his famous wife use his name, and who urges all husbands of prominent women to follow his example.

Every now and then some member of the Timid Sex rises to revolt against the "Tyranny of Woman" and to shout a feeble protest for equal rights of men. But, alas, the rest of his sex are either too apathetic or too shy to stand back of him. So nothing ever comes of it.

After all, why should an upstanding he-man with a career or a profession of his own permit himself to be submerged under a woman's personality? And why should a woman who has made a success of her own, in the arts or in business, want to use her husband's name?

* * *

Oh yes, I know there's a thrill, just as first, in being called "Mrs. John Doe"—a sort of "I-belong-to-him" feeling—a delicious possessiveness. But you get over that. And then you find yourself trying to juggle two names, and wondering how to sign a hotel register, or which name to have your mail sent in, or how you were introduced at the last party. It's terribly confusing?

But it's far more confusing to the man. Just think what a woman can do, these days, to annoy or embarrass the man whose name she carries around with her!

She can write things and express sentiments with which he absolutely disagrees and sign them "Mrs. John Doe." Or, as has happened in the case of several famous actresses, she can go on the stage and blazon his name in electric lights over a theater, even though he may be a supreme court justice or a parson who believes in original sin and infant demnation.

Worse still, if she doesn't enjoy life with him, she can go out on her own and take up racketeering, or run a smart speakeasy, or be a hostess in a dance hall under the name of "Mrs. John Doe"—and he can't do a thing about it. When it comes to names, what's his is hers—and what's hers is her own.

~~Women are doing too~~ many startling and unusual things, these days, for any man to want to feel responsible for their exploits. After all, a man is entitled to protect his dignity and professional standing in this world. And now that so sooner or later, a man should have many marriages go on the rocks the security of knowing, at least, that his name won't strike him in the face from the screen, or appear in gold letters over a dressmaking establishment, or flare up at him from the newspapers over a night-club scandal.

You may argue that a woman can add glory to her husband's name. But that's the bunk. For, no matter how brilliant or glorious a woman's achievements may be, there's nothing that galls or humiliates a man worse than to be known as "Jane Doe's husband!" And to be called "Mr. Jane Doe" is the last word in insults!—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Menace to Auto "Tinkerer."

Not long ago I wrote on the subject of gas poisoning. It was pointed out that many serious cases of gas poisoning can be traced to leaky coal and gas stoves, gas tubing, gas jets and defective fixtures. I suggested that this danger could be prevented by the timely inspection of stoves and pipes and the prompt repair of all defective parts.

It was stated that gas poisoning is caused by the inhalation of a deadly gas called carbon monoxide. This is found in combination with natural gas, in [illegible] illuminating gas and in the exhaust of gasoline motors. I described how rapidly this gas attacked the human body. It is distressing to learn that deaths from this cause exceed all other deaths from poisons combined.

Serious and fatal cases of carbon monoxide poisoning are often caused by the inhalation of the poisonous vapors from the exhaust of an automobile. It is said that sufficient poisonous gas is found in the exhaust of automobiles that travel on Fifth avenue to annihilate all of the inhabitants of Manhattan. But fortunately the gas is dispersed in the air and the poisonous effects are counteracted.

But when a motor is kept running indoors, as in a closed garage, the gas cannot escape. It will overcome all who come in contact with it. In most instances its inhalation leads to sudden death.

Many men like to tinker with their cars. Often weather conditions do not permit work outdoors, and it is done indoors. It is dangerous to work on a car in a poorly ventilated garage. I cannot overemphasize this danger and warn you of the peril of inhaling the fumes of the exhaust.

Never work on your car if the garage doors are closed. Always open the doors and windows regardless of how cold it may be outdoors. A good plan is to securely attach a hose pipe and lead the hose outdoors. This will assure you of safety from the carbon monoxide from the exhaust of the motor.

I am glad to say that New York state and many other states realize the dangers of gas poisoning by automobiles. The department of public vehicles constantly warns of this peril. The fatalities could be reduced to a minimum if all car owners would take the necessary precautions.

It is when we get careless about things that we have trouble. We must be on the alert all the time. It is true of the automobile, particularly, that it has brought mankind many new problems. Gas poisoning is one of them.

RALLY IS HELD BY MISSIONARY GROUP

Miss Vera Stull Appears on Calvary Program.

Work in the mission fields was the program theme for the missionary rally held by the Woman's Missionary society of Calvary Evangelical church Thursday night in the church parlors. Mrs. Lyle Messenger, president, was in charge of a short business session and Mrs. Albert Harruff presided for the program hour.

Miss Vera Stull, a former worker at Red Bird mission in Kentucky, portrayed the life of the mountaineers in a devotional play. She was assisted by Ruth and Mary Jane Zachman. Mrs. [illegible] Zachman presented the mission study lesson assisted by her daughters, Catherine, Elizabeth and Mildred, who represented China, Japan and India. Patricia Fulk entertained with a musical number and Mrs. Otto Rieger presented current events. Refreshments were served.

Segregation.

Attorney General Cummings has made an announcement which should be pleasing to the majority of penologists. Through negotiations with the war department, he reports federal prisoners of the worst type will be segregated in Alcatraz prison, located on a precipitous island in San Francisco bay. Strong ocean currents and the island's terrain make escape virtually impossible. During the time Alcatraz was used as a military prison, no escapes were made.

Unfortunately, the project will be compared with notorious penal colonies such as "Devil's island," where French prisoners are segregated. The attorney general, anticipating criticism from the comparison, points out that it will not be the government's intention to impose special hardship on Alcatraz prisoners. The only purpose of isolating them is to keep them away from other prisoners and to diminish the possibility of escape.

This is in accord with the best theory of penologists. Experts like Warden Lawes of Sing Sing prison have declared repeatedly that vast improvement could be made in the prison system by isolating prisoners according to their criminal class. Prisoners incapable of reform should not be allowed to mingle with others who show possibilities of being reclaimed. It is usually the incorrigible criminal who is the nucleus of prison disturbance. When he escapes, as he does frequently in a system which is adapted to the average prisoner, he terrorizes society until he is recaptured. Harvey Bailey is the most recent example of the type.

Alcatraz prison can accommodate approximately 600 men. It is Mr. Cummings' belief that by selecting that many men from penal groups in federal penitentiaries vast improvement can be effected in the morale of other prisoners. "Here may be isolated the criminals of the vicious irredeemable type so that their evil influence may not be extended to other prisoners who are disposed to rehabilitate themselves." It is a progressive move.

Dr. Mayo's Advice.

"Why should science add new years of life to a man's body when his mind has stagnated long before?" asks Dr. Charles H. Mayo. The question finds no ready answer from the doctor's countrymen. To be truthful, most of them never thought of that side of it.

Their way of living must make them wonder sometimes, however, why science should add new years to a man's body when its industrial usefulness so often is terminated by official rulings at the age of 45. It seems more than a little futile to go on piling up years when the rulers of their civilization impose such a heavy penalty on the aged.

In civilizations which flourished long before the United States, or even the territory it occupies, was known, old men—and they were not so old then—had a place. Perhaps it was because their body's span of life was so much shorter that their minds were held in such esteem as storehouses of wisdom and experience.

They were the brains of their social systems. It was natural that they should take their places on the battlefield of wits when the ardors of physical combat became too heavy for their waning physical strength. In the family and in the state they did the thinking while younger and more active men did the working.

It was the Greek ideal to develop the mind and body in equal proportions. Failure to reach the ideal in measure sufficient to maintain a civilization in no way detracts from the permanent achievements of a people who left mankind its greatest heritage of thought.

The American ideal, in practice, is to develop the mind and body in proportions that will enable them to be of greatest service to an industrial state. Independent development of the intellect which would insure life for the mind when its part in the industrial service of the body has been terminated by denial of work barely has started.

It will continue. Despite Dr. Mayo's skepticism, it will continue faster because science has made great progress in lengthening the span of life. His own career, still a thing of activity although he is close to 70 years old, shows what is possible ultimately.

Nothing Momentous.

Now that the [illegible] convention of the American [illegible] has recorded its [illegible] support for the [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] at the base was [illegible] and which [illegible] been designated [illegible] momentous gathering [illegible] history produced [illegible] It was as [illegible] of a cemetery board [illegible]

Yet, it may be [illegible] of momentous developments [illegible] momentous than anything [illegible] been. It was labor's [illegible] be disclosed in the actions of [illegible] a comparatively [illegible] meeting [illegible] as a true indication, labor [illegible] in the sense that [illegible] which causes its delegates to [illegible] To be sure, there are many [illegible] ness and much unrest seething [illegible] the surface, but they are in [illegible] program of the American Federation of Labor not an integral part of it.

There is a possibility, of course, that federation's official attitude is not [illegible] reflection of its constituency's temper. [illegible] the claim is not admissible without [illegible] debate, even by those friendly critics of the federation who are familiar with its many weaknesses. Too many unknowns are involved to permit any definition of organized labor's attitude toward current factors that would be more authoritative than the definition its delegates have given by their votes.

Reelection of old officers indicates that their policies have found more approval than disapproval. President William Green, under fire many times for his conciliatory attitude, has been given a mandate to continue that attitude for another year. Foremost among Mr. Green's convictions is the penalty of inflation on wage earners. He stated it in his address at the opening of the convention and he will fight for it during his new term. If he were to have no other plank in his platform, organized labor could afford to support him on the basis of his anti-inflation policy.

The Same Mistake.

There is no doubt that early in December the 18th amendment will be taken out of the Constitution. Thereupon, the United States will enter a new phase of its struggle with the universal problem of abuse of alcoholic beverages.

From the standpoint of law, circumstances which will prevail immediately after repeal will be virtually the same as those which prevailed before the legislatures of the states authorized the experiment of constitutional prohibition. From a social standpoint, there will be a great difference.

The country has passed through an acute experience from which it has emerged with certain concepts that did not exist in the minds of the majority of people before national prohibition. One of those concepts is that it is impractical to try to achieve temperance by legislation.

Yet, in dispatches from Washington dealing with investigations being undertaken there of taxation possibilities after repeal there is evidence of a tendency to repeat the same old mistake in a different way. The lone bright spot is the fact that some officials doubt the wisdom of laying heavy taxes on alcoholic beverages to discourage immoderate use. They have learned a lesson.

The Rockefeller study of what should be done after repeal to avoid confusion emphasizes another concept which is common among the people but does not seem to have penetrated official intelligence. Fermented beverages are one thing and distilled beverages are another. Years ago, in the movement to promote temperance, brewers and vintners were favored against distillers, yet there is no positive sign that the sound wisdom of that move is going to be followed by taxmakers of this generation.

Temperance is the objective of the American people in the phase of liquor traffic control they are about to enter. Every action affecting the traffic should be measured carefully for its probable contribution to temperance. If it does not show promise according to the lessons learned in the past, it should be rejected. Excessive taxation, which merely would drive the trade in alcoholic beverages under ground, is a contemplated action which should be rejected.

FIRST OHIO TROOPS.

Ohio was the first state to send a volunteer regiment to a federal rendezvous for the Spanish-American war. A camp for mustering in the units of the national guard was established just east of Columbus. That tract, now a part of the village of Bexley, was called Camp Bushnell and was in command of Major General Henry A. Axline, who was adjutant general of the state at the time. The first unit to leave the mustering camp was the First Ohio Cavalry which departed for Camp George H. Thomas, Chicka Park in Northern Georgia, on the morning of May 14, 1898. The Fourth regiment followed out of Camp Bushnell later the same day and together the two were the pioneer organizations at the rendezvous for state troops designated by the war department.

Behind The News In Washington And Wall Street

BY GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — The next thirty days or so probably will find Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper emerging as the No. 1 man of President Roosevelt's recovery drive.

If he doesn't take over the reins alone there is at least every indication you will see him up on the driver's seat helping to crack the whip.

Insiders say the President leans more and more on the judgment and ability of the Commerce Secretary.

Reckoning

There is general agreement in administration circles that the time has come when the warp-and-woof men of recovery must shake hands if a durable fabric is to come from the loom.

Congress delegated broader powers to the President at last spring's extraordinary session than they had time to measure. Seen from back home the total was gigantic. Misgivings you never heard about were balanced against popular approval.

Now the legislators will be trekking back here a month and a half hence to demand an accounting.

By and large the report will be good. No one can question the fact conditions are far better today than a year ago. Men have gone back to work. Others are getting better wages. Those black lines on the industrial charts are higher.

There still remains a lack of coordination in the drive forward.

Every shock trooper is sure the other fellow is the "Jim" with whom everybody else was out of step.

Coordinator

This is where Roper would come in. Years of padding around in the squirrel cage of politics have taught him an easy gait is the least wearing.

He is a diplomatist of high order when it comes to bringing two or more factions together. And if he comes in as expected to fit the pieces together it will mean President Roosevelt has leaned a little to the right.

The commerce secretary may safely be rated as one of the true conservatives in the official family.

That Mr. Roosevelt also should be turning somewhat more conservative than he was on March 4 is not surprising. It is easy for a man to stand outside of a ball park and say what he'd do if he were at bat. When he gets up to the plate a lot of mysterious curves start shooting past his bean and then it's up to him.

After a man gets in the White House he suddenly becomes aware of ominous fingers stretching out from corners he never suspected existed.

Some of them shake too vigorously to be disregarded.

Velvet

President Roosevelt wrested highly radical powers from congress. He has used them conservatively.

Inflationists are still screaming bloody murder because he hasn't turned on the printing presses and rolled off a billion dollars' worth of unbacked bills.

Out in the farm belt Milo Reno of the Farmers union is preaching revolution.

Reno says in speech after speech that if F. D. R. doesn't come through on all his campaign promises he'll be "the last President of the United States."

Strikes inspired by differences over employer-labor interpretations of NRA codes are in progress all over the country. More are in the offing.

It's going to take a coordinator with a touch of velvet to bring everything together on a semblance of common ground.

Buying

The boys in the NRA publicity organization are all agog because they have some sweet news and can't let go of it.

Letters are coming in from all sections giving rosy reports of the "Buy Now" campaign. Those who have seen them say the names of the firms and business houses signing them read like a Who's Who of American industrial [illegible]

Their reports give concrete sales figures today as compared with those of six months and a year ago. They must remain business secrets. But without revealing any statistics the blue eagle guardians will tell you the campaign beginning Oct. 20 to get buyers to loosen up is bearing definite fruit where strong local advertising is done.

Another reflection is [illegible] in national advertising, they say.

Kidnapers

Judicious use of the telephone plug-in has proved of inestimable help to department of justice agents in their war on kidnapers. They haven't resorted to wire-tapping because in each instance they got permission from the families of victims to listen in.

As you will recall the bureau of investigation urges that it be notified immediately a person was kidnaped. Complete secrecy of operation was promised to prevent harm befalling the unfortunate in the hands of the hoodlums.

One of the first things the DJ men did upon entering the case was to ask they be allowed to listen in on all telephone calls coming into the house and office of the victim. Special boards were set up at the telephone exchange for the sole purpose of tapping these calls.

In several cases run down thus far priceless tips leading to arrests came from this source.

Notes

Arrival of a visiting foreign dignitary in Washington spreads no joy among the White House secretariat. To them it simply means one must don a frock coat, jam on a high hat and go down to the station to meet the train . . . Louie, Mac, and Steve have been known to match to see who loses for the honors. . . . President Roosevelt is going to get all snarled up in his recovery program initials if he isn't careful. . . . The other day in referring to the new agency to handle purchase of hogs and cotton he called it the "commodity credit corporation." . . . That would make two C.C.C.'s. . . . General Hugh Johnson sounds a lot like Al Smith on the radio. . . . He puts the same biting clip into his punch-lines.

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 — New York conservatives claim that the good faith of the public works administration will soon be put to the test and they will have plenty to say if the test isn't met according to their ideas.

The Passamaquoddy Power Development (in Maine) has applied for $40,000,000. Its sponsors claim it will put more men to work than any other project that has been offered to the P. W. A. Also that there can be no possible reason for turning it down if the real object is reemployment. But they imply—and almost hope—that political obstacles may intervene.

The proposition has been offered to the government in two alternative forms—either as a private enterprise to be financed as a self-liquidating loan or as a direct federal ownership project. In the latter case the sponsors ask only to be repaid the six or seven hundred thousand dollars they have spent in making plans and surveys. As a federal power development it would rank second only to the Tennessee Valley.

The chief engineer in charge of the plans has been Dexter Cooper, younger brother of Colonel Hugh Cooper of Dnieperstroy fame. Both Cooper brothers have spent money in preparing the project, as have several industrial corporations. Private financing has been impossible since the plans reached a practical stage.

Politics

The political angle that New York expects to complicate the picture is this: The development would spread work and cheap power through Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and part of Massachusetts including Boston. But the three northern states are normally Republican and in any case politically unimportant, while Massachusetts is Smith-Democrat and not Roosevelt-Democrat. Therefore they believe Passamaquoddy is likely to be sidetracked in favor of projects with more fertile political possibilities.

They overlook another aspect that might enter into a turn-down. Northern New England is less in need of unemployment relief than almost any other section of the United States. Of course men could be imported for the jobs from needier parts.

Utilities

You might ask why conservative interests don't seem to be bothered about stepping on private utility toes in the section to be served by the Maine development. The answer might be that big utility holding companies are not deeply involved. Most of the New England operating companies are independent and their problems would cause no particular grief in important financial quarters.

The utility set-up in Massachusetts is unusually clean. This is due to the Massachusetts public service commission, which is one of the oldest and strongest in the country and has never allowed holding companies to get a stranglehold. This commission helped prick the 1929 bubble by realistically refusing to allow the issue of certain utility securities in October of that year. Investors who might have bought have cause to be grateful.

France

Informed Wall Street is watching French internal developments closely. It looks to leading New York banks as if it won't be long now before the French gold standard goes overboard.

Several South American countries think so anyway. For the first time in years they have sold francs and bought dollars and transferred their balances here for safe keeping. The deposits they are building up are well in excess of trade requirements.

Keen observers see this as the first ripple in a wave of foreign capital that will pour into the United States if our monetary position improves and France's gets worse. They are not at all sure that the flood will be an unmixed blessing.

New York analysts say that France is in trouble because she is willing neither to inflate nor to balance her budget. Any French politician who suggests either figuratively has his head cut off. But if they don't do the second they'll blooming well have to do the first.

Germany

New York financial experts point out that Germany is following the same tactics in regard to the depreciated dollar that she adopted when the pound sterling left gold. The German government is busily speeding up repayment of dollar short-term credits which were frozen up during the crisis. Eventually Germany will be almost free of foreign commitments and will be all set to get her share of world trade by successful competition.

The German automobile industry was admittedly one of the chief beneficiaries of Chancellor Hitler's "battle against unemployment." Latest figures show a sharp rise of the number of workers in this industry. It is therefore strange that Opel—the largest German automobile firm—in the midst of this boomlet curtailed its production schedule first to four and now to three days per week.

The explanation is that additional production in the German automobile industry means aeroplane motors and not automobile. Opel is owned by General Motors—is regarded as a foreign concern—and a foreign concern can't be entrusted with Reichswehr orders.

The Word of God.

SAFE FROM ALL EVIL: The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.—Psalm 121.7.

TODAY
Arthur Brisbane's News Review

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—[illegible] between Russia and Japan [illegible] cerning the Chinese railway [illegible] reaches one of the usual [illegible] both sides saying that they [illegible] every desire to avoid war [illegible] ways a dangerous pro[illegible] Russia and Japan are said [illegible] plans fully prepared for war [illegible] comes, and there is talk of con[illegible] centration of troops by Japan.

If that war does come [illegible] provide another interesting [illegible] costly test of soviet efficiency.

Western Europe has war [illegible] of its own. Hitler to pro[illegible] he means what he says [illegible] Germany to withdraw [illegible] from the disarmament conference, but from the League of Nations. This leaves him free [illegible] pleases in any direction [illegible] league control, and carry [illegible] plan to scrap the Versailles [illegible] rather than accept for Germany [illegible] permanent second place.

• • •

We're Surprised

All this ought not affect [illegible] unfortunately, it does affect [illegible] because our statesmen seem [illegible] able to get their little feet [illegible] European flypaper come h[illegible] attend to matters in the [illegible] States.

Germany's action, according [illegible] special dispatch to the New [illegible] Times, "apparently came as [illegible] prise to the state department." Everything comes as a surprise [illegible] the state department. [illegible] same dispatch Secretary Hull speaks of this country [illegible] solidly with our former allies.

How solidly? Not again [illegible] to the tune of ten billion [illegible] let us hope. We should [illegible] Europe time to finish [illegible] the original debts before starting new ones.

There is one grain of comfort [illegible] the fact that war usually does [illegible] happen when everybody expects it.

Plucky little Belgium [illegible] meaning to be taken by surprise this time," is completing the forts along the frontier, to cost a hundred and fifty million dollars. That gives work to men that [illegible] it, but the taking by surprise will come in another way, when airplanes fly over the forts, paying no attention to them.

Dispatches from Paris say, "The French are calm." They may be having enough airplanes, explosives and gas bombs ready to destroy every important city east of the Rhine and most of the human beings in those cities.

It is inconceivable that Hitler should invite actual war unless he has prepared to meet it in the air. Germany's admirable commercial air fleet could do nothing against thousands of special fighting planes in the French air fleet.

A Polyglot Broadcast

Chancellor Hitler's radio speech giving Germany's reasons for leaving the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, was broadcast four times, in four languages—German, English, Spanish and Portuguese—covering all the world that listens to radio.

The speech, ably prepared, perfectly adapted to influence the German nation, included serious words intended to propitiate France:

"Similarly, we take cognizance, with hopeful emotion, of the assurance that the French government, under its present chief, does not intend to wound the feelings of or humiliate the German people."

And after further friendly reference to France:

"The German people are convinced that their martial honor in thousands of battles and skirmishes has remained clean and without blemish, exactly as we also see in the French soldier our old glory-bedecked opponent."

There was, however, no broadcasting of Hitler's talk in the French language. Perhaps Hitler remembered Bismarck's saying after his rough talk to France following the war of 1870, in which he spoke German, although he knew French well: "When I discuss with men with whom I expect to come ultimately to an understanding, I speak their language; but when I see that it is useless to discuss with them, I speak my own."

Hitler used four languages but not French.

The French might reply [illegible] quoting Bismarck: "The decision will come only from God, from the God of battles, when He lets fall from His hand the iron dice of destiny." Those dice were the cannon balls.

It will be a sad day for [illegible] if those dice start falling again.

Chancellor Hitler has [illegible] politics as Mussolini has done. The aged Von Hindenburg, dissolved the Reichstag, proclaims a new election that would fill the hearts of American bosses with envy. There is only one German party, the Hitler party. Only his candidates will be voted for, other parties having been suppressed or gone into voluntary retirement.

Von Hindenburg frankly claims that the election is [illegible] merely to enable Germans [illegible] expression to their fealty to the Reich."

New Boy and Girl Idea

Dr. Monroe, professor of entomology, who knows everything about insects, reports interesting discoveries concerning sex [illegible] in the insect world, especially among flour-beetles. Partial starvation in the larvae or grub stage has a great influence on sex. [illegible] learned professor thinks the birth of boy babies in greater numbers than girl babies in recent years may be due to mothers' dieting to keep thin, also partly to the fact that hard times have made food scarce.

Let young women remember, however, that the mothers of Abraham Lincoln, Charlemagne, George Washington and Edison did not starve themselves.

TO PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF!

DENSMORE SHUTE—Britons gasped and gaped when he won the 1933 British Open over St. Andrews' deceptive fairways and angry bunkers. Golf prophets say Shute will line up with Golf Immortals. Answering a question, Shute recently said: "I have tried all the brands, and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

TOMMY ARMOUR—Often called "Wizard of the Irons," Armour has won a flock of championships, including the U. S. Open in 1927, the P. G. A. in 1930, the British Open in 1931. Tommy knows his golf and his cigarettes. "What do I think of Camels? They are my brand and have been for years. I smoke a lot but I must be sure that my nerves are healthy and my head is clear—that's why I prefer Camels."

GENE SARAZEN—This great golfer began his winning ways in 1922 when he became U. S. Open Champion. He has been a consistent tournament winner ever since. This year he won his third P. G. A. Championship. On the subject of cigarettes Sarazen says: "I agree with Shute and Armour—I smoke Camels, too. They always taste good—and they never interfere with my nerve control."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women whose work and play demand healthy nerves and level heads prefer Camels. Active people agree that they can smoke these fine-flavored, milder cigarettes without fear of jangling their nerves.

Another thing about active people—they are pretty generally steady smokers... And, as anyone who smokes Camels will tell you, you can smoke as many of these cigarettes as you want—and never have a "cigaretty" aftertaste. The last cigarette at night tastes as good as the first in the morning, if you smoke Camels.

Try a package of Camels today... Enjoy the superior flavor of their costlier tobaccos. If you are a steady smoker you will appreciate the fact that Camels never get on your nerves, never tire your taste.

HE: Nice drive! Have a Camel. They're milder, you know.
SHE: Thanks, I will! I've smoked them for years. I know they taste better. And it is the one cigarette that never gets on my nerves.

REPAIRS MADE ECONOMICALLY

Modern Concern Turns Out Excellent Work at Moderate Cost.

The Nu-Way Shoe Repair at 125 West Center street is well named, for "Nu-Way" is certainly correct.

Many of us can remember the old shoe cobbler, sitting in the window, pounding the pegs or nails into the soles of shoes, dressing them with pieces of glass, and rubbing by hand with emery cloth.

No such crude methods are used at the Nu-Way Shoe Repair. Here the latest of factory machinery, powered by electric motors, operated by factory trained shoe builders do the work.

Regardless of what is needed most any pair of shoes can be rebuilt, actually made like new in a short time.

The materials used are of the best. The right grade of leather is carried in stock to meet every need—milady's light dancing pumps, or the heavy, long duty soles required by many men.

The Nu-Way Shoe Repair also maintains a strictly modern shoe shining department. Here you can be sure only polishes are used which will not injure any leather. Dyeing of shoes is an important feature of this department.

Hat cleaning is done by the latest methods. There is no excuse for allowing a perfectly good hat to assume that worn, bedraggled aspect when you can have it cleaned and blocked in a very short time by masters at hat cleaning. Women's felt hats are also cleaned.

This trio makes up the force of this busy, modern establishment.

CLOCK SERVES TASTY FOODS

South State Street Restaurant Rapidly Gaining Favor of Discriminating People.

And now the scientists tell us it is not so much what we eat as the way in which we eat it that counts. Even if that is true and even scientists sometimes reverse their conclusions, what you eat usually determines the way in which you eat it. If it tickles the palate, you are quite likely to prolong the process of eating while you extract the full measure of enjoyment. In other words a "contented mind maketh a feast."

You will get that contentment if you will do your eating at the Clock restaurant at 134 South State street, for everything served there is first class and that means it is tasty, well cooked and of prime quality. Ever since he opened the place, that has been the ambition of Mr. Decker, the proprietor. In order to be sure of the quality of the food, Mr. Decker himself buys the best possible fruits, vegetables, meats and fish. These are taken to one of the best equipped kitchens in Marion where every facility exists to convert them into the food that is like your mother used to set before you.

Mr. Decker himself watches this preparation. He is an experienced man, one who knows how to get good foods together. Either his short order, or his entree, his salad or his baked dishes—any of them, in fact—has to please a palate more fastidious than yours in order to pass him.

People around this community have come to know this. That is why The Clock enjoys such a nice patronage, why at luncheon the evening meal or after the show in the evening it always has a number of discriminating people who know what good things are.

The Clock is located at 134 South State street, one-half block from Center. Parking space may be had at any hour near The Clock.

New Machine Installed To Better Serve Motorists

Few of we ordinary mortals realize the pioneering work being done by many firms interested in perfecting the automobile.

For instance the Standard Auto Parts Co. at 182 North Main street, have recently added to their machine equipment a Pin Hole Grinder.

With this machine they can grind a hole to within two ten-thousandths of an inch, accuracy which is impossible to attain by the usual garage methods.

All piston rods, spindle bolts, hydraulic brake cylinders, steering sector housings, cluster gears, etc., have holes that wear in replacing parts to get a nearly perfect bearing it is absolutely necessary to have some such equipment.

The bearing made right adds thousands of extra miles to every job of this nature, because it produces more bearing surface to resist wear from the pin.

It is well to know more about your car. Next time you have pistons replaced, connecting or other parts with pin bearings replaced or repaired, learn how work is done.

A few questions asked [illegible] mechanic will soon convince [illegible] if a factory job or a make-shift repair is in his mind. If the [illegible] ask him to take the parts [illegible] Standard Auto Parts Co. Let [illegible] do this specialized work [illegible] pay you well.

NEW FIRING METHOD ELIMINATES SMOKING

Iron Fireman Solves Age-Old Problem by Automatic Stoking.

The Iron Fireman automatic stoker for furnaces is winning many friends hereabouts by its elimination of laborious furnace feeding, furnishing a uniform and comfortable degree of heat in all weather, and incidentally soon paying for itself in fuel consumption economy, according to M. & B. Appliance Store of 255 West Center street.

Its method of feeding fuel to the furnace fire is responsible for elimination of smoke, maintenance of uniform heating degree, and saving coal.

The Iron Fireman is operated electrically, the only labor required being the filling of the hopper with coal. A worm drive automatically carries the fuel to the furnace. Fuel is fed to the fire from below thereby consuming smoke and attendant gases released in the firebox. When the hopper is filled the Iron Fireman needs no further service attention.

It may be installed for any type of furnace, from a domestic heating plant up to a 250 h. p. boiler—ideal for schools, churches, hotels, apartment buildings, homes, etc. The company has already sold and installed several Iron Fireman in homes and buildings hereabouts, Mr. S. E. Mohat reports. An automatic control feature insures maintenance of even temperature in all seasons, he asserts.

EXPERT LOCKSMITHS SOLVE KEY TROUBLES

Marion Concern Will Open Closed Locks Without Unnecessary Delay.

Locks and keys play a large part in the life of any one. Perhaps no article is so universally used as the key. It does not seem to mean a great deal when it is at hand but just let it get lost and trouble starts. Men have been locked out of their cars, locked out of their homes, locked out of their desks—all by the single loss of a keyring.

Moreover, locks are used as a protection. If anybody can open them without the key they are not worth much, are they? And the better the lock the more difficult they are to open. So when a man loses the keys used in the modern locks he has come to a time when he surely needs a friend. Now paste this in your hat for the time when you need it, for you will want it some day like all the others. You can find just such a friend as you need in Hull's Lock & Key Shop located at 125 West Church street. Here is an expert lock man used to frantic calls from people who can not get doors open, business men who have lost the keys to their desks, and the man who has misplaced his automobile keys and is up against the parking ban. Such people turn to this man and then he solves the situation. Long experience, a high degree of natural aptitude and all the appliances necessary get results. The stubborn lock releases, a key is made for the closed auto, and the desk is opened without resorting to a jimmy.

Yes, of course he can make you extra keys before the emergency arises. It might be a good idea to have them on hand.

And now the youngsters have the craze. They ride for the sheer joy of it. There is no way to please the youngster more than to get him a "bike."

The W. J. Guy hardware carry in stock a fine line of bicycles, one that will please either old or young yet at a price that is reasonable.

WOMAN IS NAMED AS MURDERER OF MAN

Brown's body indicated he had been struck heavy blows, the sheriff said. The sheriff also theorized that Brown had regained consciousness while Mrs. Timmer drove into Wyandot county and that she shot him there.

The sheriff said he believed Mrs. Timmer fired the fatal shot about 6 or 7 p. m. Friday while the bus was seen parked along the road two and one-half miles north of Upper Sandusky.

The bullet was fired from a gun held close to Brown's head, powder marks around the wound show. The bullet struck Brown above the right eye.

The brother of the murdered man and three cousins, Jesse Brown, Grover Brown and Chalmers Baker, came to Upper Sandusky Sunday to take the body back to Powhatan Point today. They said Brown has been collecting Indian relics 40 years, and had them on display in his home until he began the tour of the southern part of the state with Mrs. Timmer. Russell Brown, 14, son of the murdered man, traveled with them until school started, returning then to Powhatan Point. They had shown the exhibit at several county fairs during the summer.

Filing of formal charges against Mrs. Timmer was to await the return of the prosecuting attorney, who was in Toledo today. Mrs. Timmer is being held in jail under $10,000 bond.

Brown is survived by four children, Leander Brown, of near Powhatan Point; Ross Brown, in a Forest camp in California; Russell and Junior Brown, at home, his father residing at Powhatan and three brothers and three sisters. His wife died a year ago.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS APPARENT KIDNAPING

Wealthy Chicagoan, Missing Since Friday, Believed Held for Ransom.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Mystery today surrounded the disappearance of William Walton Hall, part owner of the Sea Dog Inn, a night club, who relatives believe has been kidnaped. He was last seen Friday night.

Although the missing man's relatives were reported ready to pay $5,000 ransom, Harry Lisle, president of the company which owns the Sea Dog Inn, told Police Captain Daniel Gilbert he was far from certain that Hall had been abducted.

"He might have trotted off somewhere for a couple of days," Lisle said. He added that no ransom demands had been received.

Hall, in addition to his night club interests is a law student and part heir to a $200,000 estate left by his late father, William Hall, a department store owner of Freeport, Ill. Letters mailed from that city instructing him to leave $5,000 with his wife, Julia, because "she will soon need it," led to the belief that Hall is in the hands of kidnapers.

Attorney J. G. Latimer, family lawyer, asked police and federal investigators to withdraw, asserting the ransom money was ready.

NRA TEST PERIOD FACED, AYRES SAYS

Economist Believes Adjustments To New Conditions Will Be Difficult.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16—This is the testing time, says Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist and vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., "for the NRA and our recovery efforts."

"During recent months," Ayres said in his monthly business review today, "groups representing all kinds of businesses have been working with government representatives to formulate codes, and with their own organizations to put them into effect.

"These efforts still continue but it is pretty generally true by now that all American business is operating under the new codes. It is too soon as yet to judge what the results will be for the developments so far are of diverse sorts.

"Probably more workers are employed in October, and the aggregate payroll disbusements is larger than in any previous time this year.

"Both wholesale and retail prices for manufactured goods are advancing, while agricultural prices are weak. As a result the workers are protesting against the advances in the cost of living, while farmers are complaining that the prices of goods they must buy are moving up more rapidly than those of the products they sell.

"Adjustments to the new conditions are proving difficult. Many business men are finding it hard to make profits * * * Many workers are discovering that the benefits received under the codes are less than they expected, and because of this large numbers of strikes have broken out * * *."

SPEECH STIRS PEACE PARLEY AT GENEVA

Germany could not get equality rights.

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan of Washington, D. C., representing the American Council on Disarmament, read to the assemblage cables selected from 50 received in the course of the night from numerous mass meetings in the United States urging continuation of disarmament efforts.

Conference Adjourns

The disarmament conference today adjourned to Oct. 26.

This was in keeping with the recommendation of the steering committee which suggested a suspension of formal sessions until that date with a meeting of its own body the day before.

Belief that the situation is not hopeless and that a rupture in the league may yet be averted was expressed by some representatives of league countries today.

This expression was based, they said, on an interpretation of statements at Berlin of willingness to negotiate a direct Franco-German understanding.

Besides, it was remarked that if and when Germany officially notifies the league of her resignation, this can not be effective for two years by terms of the league covenant itself.

Also, the council could decide, if Germany committed any act deemed to affect international peace, that her resignation was not effective and that Germany remains bound by the league commandments.

Election May End German Presidency

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 16—A semi-official statement today revealed that all parties except the Nazis (National Socialists) will be forbidden to present tickets at the reichstag election Nov. 12, designed to express unanimous endorsement of the policies of Chancellor Hitler and which also may unwittingly bring an end to the German presidency.

The statement drew attention to the fact that a decree of the minister of the interior forbidding the formation of any other parties still is in force and that contraventions could be severely punished.

The voter will have the choice of approving the list by putting a cross into the ballot circle, or leaving the space blank to register disapproval.

There are indications that President Von Hindenburg, after the nation has overwhelmingly endorsed Hitler and his policies may decide the moment has come when he can retire to his home at Neudeck—thus making Hitler Germany's supreme ruler in name as well as in fact.

It is an open secret that the question of Von Hindenburg's retirement has been under consideration both by himself and the Hitler cabinet.

Those who visited him yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. George Hess of Cherry street, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Mayer and Mrs. Clarence Wolfinger of south of Marion and Mrs. J. W. Klingel of Waldo.

Curves' Return Seen as Boon to Health of Women

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16—Feminine curves, says the clinician—who disregards the pronouncements of the fashion dictators—mean better health for women.

The authority is Dr. Harlow Brooks, professor emeritus of clinical medicine at New York university, here for the International Medical association assembly of the Inter-State Post-Graduate Medical association.

A return to the feminine curves of the gay nineties, Dr. Brooks said, would be a distinct boon to the health of American women.

In fact, he believes voluntary diets through which women have fought to achieve and maintain slim figures have been as harmful to the health of the nation as the involuntary diets that have brought malnutrition to those on depression charity lists.

"In both cases," he said, "there has been a distinct bad effect on health. Some of these diets that women have followed to gain slim figures have been such that they have caused the digestive organs to change so that they would not assimilate food needed for maintaining healthy bodies.

"A return to feminine curves would mean that women would give up these harmful diets."

MARION QUOTA 45 IN FEDERAL WORK CAMPS

County May Send That Number To Refill Reforestation Corps.

Marion county's quota in the movement of the federal government to bring its reforestation army up to full strength for another six-month period of work has been fixed at 45, Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner and chairman of Marion county's relief committee, learned today.

Word received from the state relief commission fixed the quota and requested the Marion county committee to have that number of applicants registered by Wednesday.

Dr. Sifritt this morning said he and relief investigators with whom he has been working to make certain that applicants have been receiving relief from the city or townships, have 33 applications on file and will increase this number to approximately 50 by Wednesday.

Physical examinations will be given applicants from this county in Columbus in the near future, Dr. Sifritt said. Arrangements are being made by the committee to transport this county's applicants to that city. Those accepted will be taken from Columbus to Fort Knox, Ky., to take camp training before going to forest camps, Dr. Sifritt said.

NEW PHILOSOPHY OF ECONOMICS VISIONED

Sec. of Labor Perkins Sees End of "Industry for Profit Only.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16—A new economic philosophy in which industry faces the challenge of developing human values is visioned by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

In an address here yesterday the secretary declared the old philosophy "of industry operating only for profit is dead. A civilization is now in the making in which industry will not only be one of the great factors but a vital social force as well."

The "new deal" she asserted stands for the promotion of the general welfare. The raising of wages and buying capacity of millions of workers "are essential to the new program," Miss Perkins said.

The secretary said she is "not one of those who worry about what the working man will do with his leisure. Leisure is an economic investment and out of it will come new industries in the field of recreation."

ADMIRAL BYRD ILL

By The Associated Press

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headach and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

Redmen Scalp "Our Boys" in One-Sided Contest, 27-6

PRESIDENTS' ATTACK FALLS DOWN AGAINST HUSKY BUCYRUS LINE

Harding Scores Only Points, After Walker Blocks Kick in Third Period.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Their running attack stopped cold by a stone-like forward wall and their aerial attack wrecked by alert enemy backs, Harding High school's hopes for a return to the victory column last Saturday at the expense of the Bucyrus Redmen were blown into bits as the Reds threw "our boys" for a 27-6 loss, the second in four starts this season. The game was played on Fair ground field.

It was the Bucyrus forward wall which paved the way for the downfall of the Presidents. The husky enemy were far too tough for the inexperienced Marion forwards, opening up large holes in the Harding line through which backs sifted for consistent gain.

The Bucyrus touchdown machine rolled into action in the first period scoring one touchdown and adding the extra point from placement before the period was completed.

Harding Takes Offensive

Bucyrus added another touchdown to its score early in the second period before Harding suddenly came to life to take the offensive and outplay the Redmen for the one and only period of the contest. A Gatchell to Clady pass accounted for the Bucyrus marker, the play starting from the Harding 15-yard line.

With Bucyrus in front, 13-0 the Presidents turned loose a fast moving attack which netted one touchdown and was well on its way to another when the timer halted hostilities for the half.

The Presidents drove Bucyrus deep into its own territory and then Walker smashed through to block one of Clady's kicks. Harding recovered the ball on the Bucyrus six-yard stripe. It took three tries for Whitcum to bore through center for a touchdown. His place kick for the extra point was blocked.

Harding's one other scoring threat in this period failed when Whitcum tossed an incomplete pass over the goal line just before the half ended.

Score Twice in Third

Two more Bucyrus touchdowns were added in quick succession in the third period before Harding braced and halted the attack. Clady counted the first one when he picked a pass from Gatchell from between two Marion defenders on the 20-yard line and romped over the goal line untouched. Gatchell placed kicked the point.

Another passing attack took the ball to the Harding four a few minutes later from where Truka, a miminutive back substituting for Peterson, knifed through for a touchdown. Gatchell again added the point.

Shortly after Bucyrus had taken the 27-6 lead and spoiled Harding's hopes for a victory, Coach Jack Cheadle started a parade of freshmen and sophomores into the line-up. Half of the third period and all of the fourth was played with only one senior, Tommy Zuck, on the field. Bucyrus also substituted freely.

In the preliminary game the Harding and Bucyrus reserves battled to a scoreless tie.

A Real Puzzle.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 16 – The Michigan-Ohio State game Saturday, which may turn out to be the deciding battle in the struggle for the Big Ten championship, has the fans puzzled when they try to pick the winner. Both have strong teams: Michigan has lost only one game in three years but that was to Ohio State in 1931; and the Buckeyes have won the last two games played in the Michigan stadium while losing the last two on their own field.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 16.—Notre Dame didn't look especially impressive in beating Indiana, 12-2, Saturday but that was more than enough to preserve one college record. No Notre Dame team ever has gone through three successive games without scoring and the Ramblers had lost their last game of 1932 to Southern California 13-0 and played a scoreless tie with Kansas in this year's opener.

CLASSY SCHEDULE OF GRID GAMES BILLED IN OHIO THIS WEEK

Illinois To Play Army at Cleveland; Wesleyan To Meet Wittenberg.

By The Associated Press

A veritable feast of football is offered this week-end to the fan who likes his action fast and thrills galore.

Take a peek at the week-end program. Here are a few of the high spots:

Illinois vs. Army at Cleveland, an intersectional fray that should be productive of some high class football regardless of the winner.

Unbeaten Teams Meet

Baldwin Wallace at Case, two of the high-geared teams in the Ohio conference neither defeated as yet in league competition.

Miami at Ohio university, a game that no doubt will decide the Buckeye Athletic association championship. Miami the defending champion and Ohio with one of its best teams in years.

Ohio Wesleyan at Wittenberg, two ancient rivals that always play good football when they meet.

Washington and Jefferson at Xavier, a night game Friday that should be a battle royal.

Wooster at Akron, a game comparable to the Wittenberg-Wesleyan affair. Always a good football game.

Some of Highlights

Those are just a few of the highlights on the week-end bill. Besides the Washington & Jefferson-Xavier battle Friday night, Findlay will play at Dayton, Heidelberg at Muskingum and Kent State at Ashland, all nocturnal affairs. Due to a conflict with a high school game, the Bluffton-Defiance contest has been moved up to Friday afternoon. This will open the Northwest Ohio conference season.

Other Ohio conference games for Saturday will see Bowling Green at Ohio Northern, Marietta at Oberlin, Toledo at Kenyon, Hiram at Capital and Denison at Oberlin.

After losing a heartbreaking 3 to 0 game to Kentucky university last week, the University of Cincinnati Bearcats will open their Buckeye Athletic association schedule this Saturday night by meeting the thundering herd from Marshall.

In other games over the week-end John Marshall will play at Ferris institute, Rio Grande at West Liberty and Wilberforce meets Tuskegee at Chicago.

MANSFIELD PASSES BEAT ASHLAND, 20-0

Three Long Tosses Give Tyger Thirty-Seventh Game Without Defeat.

Three long and accurate forward tosses with Dick Olin on the throwing end and Zediker and Jenkins receiving resulted in three touchdowns for Mansfield Saturday and enabled the Tygers to chalk up their thirty-seventh victory without a defeat. Ashland was the victim and the score was 20-0. The victory was the second league triumph and gave Mansfield the lead in the race for the North Central Ohio championship.

The first two touchdowns came in the opening period. Olin threw the first of his long tosses to Jenkins who raced 25 yards to score. The second he tossed from the Mansfield 45 to Jenkins on the Ashland 10, throwing the ball far over the Ashland safety man's head. Jenkins ran the rest of the way across the goal from the Ashland 10.

Zediker scored the third touchdown when he took another 35-yard pass.

Ashland rolled up 10 first downs to nine for Mansfield but threatened to score only one once, the threat ending as Mansfield took the ball on its own three yard marker.

Glittering Intersectional Games Billed This Week

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A demonstration of just what happens when an irrestible force collides with an immovable object will be given variations on dozens of football frields this week.

Glittering intersectional pairings headed by Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Minnesota, Army and Illinois contribute added spice to a program dominated by such important sectional contests as those involving Michigan and Ohio State, Princeton and Columbia, Penn and Dartmouth, Yale and Brown, Tennessee and Alabama, Texas Christian and Texas A. and M., Washington State and California.

Briefly here's how the situation lines up on the basis of early season results:

Five Stand Out

East—Pitt, Fordham, Colgate, Syracuse and Princeton look best at the moment although the latter two have not yet been seriously tested. Pitt's "suicide schedule" takes the Panthers to Minneapolis to face Minnesota. Fordham should defeat Boston college. Colgate should "take New York university and Syracuse looks too powerful for Cornell. Princeton's sophomore backfield stars undergo their first real test in the meeting with Columbia's crack eleven. Carnegie Tech has hope of overthrowing Notre Dame's disappointing eleven and Navy hopes to rally from the Pitt debacle at Virginia's expense. Auburn faces George Washington in another intersectional contest. Penn-Dartmouth, Yale-Brown, Harvard-Holy Cross, Lafayette-Bucknell are the other leading pairings.

Midwest—Victory over three preparatory opponents, Army should discover its own strength or weakness against Illinois which showed surprising power in walloping Wisconsin last week. The collision of Michigan and Ohio State, two mighty elevens, at Ann Arbor tops the Big Ten program but Chicago's debut against Purdue and Iowa's second conference start against Wisconsin, will be watched with interest. Northwestern and Indiana are paired in the other Big Ten game. Nebraska and Kansas State, Big Six leaders, clash at Manhattan, Kan., while Oklahoma and Iowa State get together at Norman.

Vols Finally Lose

South—Tennessee, beaten for the first time since 1930 by Duke last week, returns to Southeastern conference competition against Alabama's "mystery" team. Georgia Tech and Tulane, Mississippi and Sawnee and Vanderbilt and Mississippi State square off in other conference games, while Florida and Kentucky uphold southeastern prestige against Southern conference foes. North Carolina and Washington & Lee respectively.

Far West—Southern California, a distinct favorite for the Pacific coast title again, should dispose of Oregon State and California seems to have more power than Washington State. U. C. L. A., Stanford, Washington and Montana all face non-conference rivals, the latter tackling its traditional foe, Montana State of the Rocky Mountain conference.

Southwest—Texas A. and M., with better prospects than for several years hopes to beat Texas Christian for the first time in four campaigns.

WHEAT SLUMPS IN LATE SALES

Securities Downturn Jolts Grain Values in Closing Hours of Trade.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Jolted by a downturn of securities, wheat prices underwent a sudden big tumble in the late dealings today.

Selling of wheat enlarged rapidly toward the last. Eastern sources were credited with being heavy sellers. An unexpected increase of the United States wheat visible supply total added to downward pressure on the market, and prices dropped the extreme limit allowed in a single day.

Wheat closed semi-demoralized, 4½-5⅛ cents under Saturday's finish, corn 2½-2⅞ down, oats 2¾-3¼ off, and provisions at 5 cents to 37 cents setback.

Wool Market.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 16—The market for domestic wool here is quiet but quotations are firm. Members of the wool trade for the most part appear content to wait developments in the goods market. This attitude is helped by the limited supply of some lines of domestic wool.

Estimated receipts of domestic wool at Boston, reported to the Boston Grain and Flour exchange during the week ending Oct. 14, amounted to 2,510,200 pounds as compared with 1,415,900 during the previous week.

RALLY DAY DRAWS LARGE ATTENDANCE

Rally day services at the Lee Street Presbyterian church yesterday morning, drew a large congregation. Talks were given by the director, Rev. James F. Fisher, and Attorney W. N. Harder.

The program was presented by the primary and beginners groups.

BOY HURT IN FALL

A 12 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller of 399 Waterloo street suffered a double fracture of the left arm in a fall from a tree Saturday afternoon. He was taken to the office of Dr. A. A. Starner in the W. C. Boyd ambulance where the injury was X-rayed and treated. He is now at his home. The fractures, of both bones, are near the wrist.

NEW YORK STAGING "3-RING" SHOW

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — It's a three-ring circus sure enough—this New York mayoralty campaign.

Now Joseph V. McKee, briefly an acting mayor after the abdication of James J. Walker, enters the political big top on a prancing steed supplied by Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader and erstwhile teammate of Boss John F. Curry of Tammany Hall.

Already a snarling Tammany Tiger was clawing at the fusion whip of Fiorello H. LaGuardia, independent Republican. The Tiger fights the battle of Mayor John P. O'Brien, sorely beset by the colossal financial difficulties of the city.

McKee Former "Regular"

As McKee after much hesitation, levels his lance for the charge, the great audience of New York City voters strains its necks. Which two will get thumbs down?

Joe McKee is a former Tammany "regular," president of the board of aldermen in the Walker regime, who last April announced his "complete elimination" from "politics and governmental office" to become a banker.

Despite that, there were strong evidences that the fusion of independent Democrats and Republicans wanted him to be their candidate against Tammany, and LaGuardia then said he would support McKee "if he will run on an anti-Tammany ticket."

McKee did not battle then, holding back as he had done last October when Boss Curry, seeking a candidate for the remainder of Walker's unexpired term, put McKee aside and selected O'Brien.

His Return Dramatic

Fusion finally turned to LaGuardia, and its leaders claimed they had Tammany on the run. Then came McKee's dramatic return to politics.

Some political theorists attributed McKee's about-face to the planning of Postmaster General James A. Farley, state and national Democratic chairman. They said Farley sought to build up a Democratic organization in the city in complete sympathy with the administrations in Washington and Albany.

Finances Fret Tiger

Farley was quoted as denying this, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, called upon to keep Farley out, gave assurance that he had nothing to do with the campaign.

Tammany, all the while hoping that LaGuardia and McKee will slay each other, politically frets over its finances. The city debt is approximately $2,400,000,000. The 1933 budget (comptroller's office figure) was $518,427,972.16, somewhat under the 1932 budget. But only 10 years ago the budget for New York City and county was only $350,516,525. Professor Joseph McGoldrick of Columbia university figured the per capita indebtedness for 1932 at $312.

The city has borrowed and borrowed until, when it went to the banks for money to meet its October payroll of $18,000,000 and $7,000,000 interest on bonded debt and to take care of other year-end obligations amounting to $29,000,000, the loan was granted only on condition that the administration effect genuine economies in government and reestablish its credit.

It is in such a setting that lances are drawn for combat in a field that has seen many a colorful political joust.

New York's "three ring" political circus is open in full blast, the entry of Joseph V. McKee as independent candidate for mayor, drawing new snarls from the Tammany Tiger whose candidate, Mayor John P. O'Brien, already was beset by Fiorello LaGuardia, the fusionist candidate.

FUNERAL AT LARUE

Funeral services for Samuel Thomasson of LaRue, who died last Saturday in the Lima Memorial hospital at Lima will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Davis mortuary in LaRue.

UNDERGOES OPERATION.

Miss Ruth Huffman of Richwood underwent an operation for removal of her appendix this morning at the City hospital.

MAJ. J. L. SELLERS DIES AT MARYSVILLE

Was Veteran of Two Wars; Marion Men Plan To Attend Funeral.

Major John L. Sellers, 71, of Marysville, once commander of the Third battalion of the Fourth Ohio Volunteer infantry, which included companies in Marysville, Marion and Mt. Vernon, died early Sunday at his home after a long illness.

Major Sellers was for 30 years a member of the old Fourteenth-Fourth regiment of the Ohio National guard. He rose from the rank of private to the captaincy of Co. D of Marysville, and later became major. He joined in 1878. He was a veteran of both the Spanish American and World wars.

Members of Marion camp No. 32, United Spanish-American war veterans, are planning to attend the funeral services, which will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the Marysville Presbyterian church.

Major Sellers took an active interest in civic affairs of Marysville and in fraternal groups. For many years he was a tobacco jobber.

SUPERSTITIONS GO SKY-HIGH WITH AIR ACES

You know all these fliers, don't you? If not, you can identify them by their pet jinxes: Marshal Italo Balbo, Italy's top-ranking airman, always lights a cigaret and extinguishes it before taking off, then he relights it when he gets back to earth again. Amelia Earhart, foremost aviatrix of the U. S., wears a lucky bracelet made from the toe of an elephant. Casey Jones, veteran flier, always carries his wife's glove aloft and his license number is 13. Frank Hawks, the speed king, pockets a rabbit's foot on his flights, and the license number of his thirteenth plane was—1313. Jimmy Mattern, globe girdler, took with him a $20 gold piece minted in 1904, year of his birth, on his first world flight.
